

AdvoCare Well Recognized at ACN Annual Conference

All the AdvoCare buzz at the annual conference of the American College of Nutrition in Orlando, FL September 27-30 wasn't just because of the AdvoCare booth at the conference or the full page ad in the October issue of the Journal of the American College of Nutrition.

Dr. Sidney Stohs, AdvoCare Vice President of Research and Development, was reelected to the Certification Board for Nutrition Specialists (CBNS) Dr. Harry Preuss, a member of the AdvoCare Scientific and Medical Advisory Board, was elected to the ACN Board of Directors.

In addition to accepting a trophy on behalf of AdvoCare for outstanding contributions and continued support of the ACN, Dr. Stohs was this year's recipient of the distinguished Mark A. Bieber award in recognition of his outstanding professional service and dedication to the ACN.

Drs. Stohs and Preuss moderated and gave presentations at an AdvoCare-sponsored symposium on dietary supplement safety. AdvoCare also sponsored the first, second and third place winners of the Best Posters presented at ACN and Dr. Stohs presented the Charles E. Ragus Award for the Best Scientific Paper published in the past year in the Journal of the American College of Nutrition. Dr. Jeanne Freeland-Graves of the University of Texas at Austin wrote the winning research article entitled "Low Income, Overweight and Obese Mothers as Agents of Change to Improve Food Choice, Fat Habits and Physical Activity in their One to Three Year-Old Children."

Guests of the conference also had the opportunity to hear a poster presentation entitled, "Dietary Supplement ThermoPlus® Reduces the Level of Oxidative Stress and Stabilizes the Genomic Integrity in the Liver and Kidneys of Fisher 344 Rats," which was co-authored by Dr. Stohs.
